TWC Grants $1 Million for High-Tech Summer Camps 14 Programs Support Science, Technology, Engineering, Math

The Texas Workforce Commission (TWC) awarded 14 grants totaling nearly $1 million to Texas universities and community colleges for summer youth camps that focus on science, technology, engineering and math (STEM). The grants are allowing 1,200 students between ages 14 and 21 to attend camps which help to prepare youth for future high-skill, high-demand jobs.

“These camps offer students the opportunity to get hands-on experience in math and science inside and outside of the classroom,” Governor Rick Perry said. “As the global economy continues to evolve and technology gets more sophisticated and essential every day, students need to have these building blocks as they prepare for the workplace of the future.”

Administered by TWC, the effort is part of the Governor’s Summer Merit Program, which aims to inspire Texas youth to pursue STEM-related careers.

“TWC is pleased to support these STEM camps that help Texas’ future workforce discover new areas of interest that can lead to high-demand careers,” said TWC Chairman and Commissioner Representing the Public Andres Alcantar. “These camps enhance our students’ competence in STEM, positioning them for future success in a number of industries all across Texas.”

The 1,200 Summer Merit Program scholarships awarded to 14 grant recipients are:

- Austin Community College, $7,009 –15 scholarships for the Renewable Energy day camp that will provide students with information on traditional energy; renewable solar, wind and geothermal energies; an introduction to electricity; and instruction in how to use a handheld multimeter to take electrical measurements.
- Cedar Valley College, $70,665 – 100 scholarships for two camps, including the Hot Bot Program day camp and the Hot Rocket day camp, which will offer students opportunities to learn about alternative energy, build an over-the-road model car, and build small rockets that will be launched the final day of camp.
- Lamar University, $179,844 – 100 scholarships for three residential camps, including gO WEST, gO SETX and LAMP, which will give students the chance to participate in STEM lab activities related to mechanical, chemical, industrial and civil engineering; learn skills in drafting, construction measurement and woodworking; and increase the mathematical talent of underserved high school students.
- Northwest Vista College, $36,590 – 72 scholarships for three day camps, including Space TEAMS/Girls Scouts Summer Robotics Camp-Northwest, Space TEAMS/Boysville Summer Robotics Camp-Northeast and Space TEAMS/Boys and Girls Clubs Summer Robotics Camp Central that provide opportunities for economically disadvantaged students to learn and experience how to design, build and program robots.

All Former Opponents Endorse Smitherman for Runoff Election

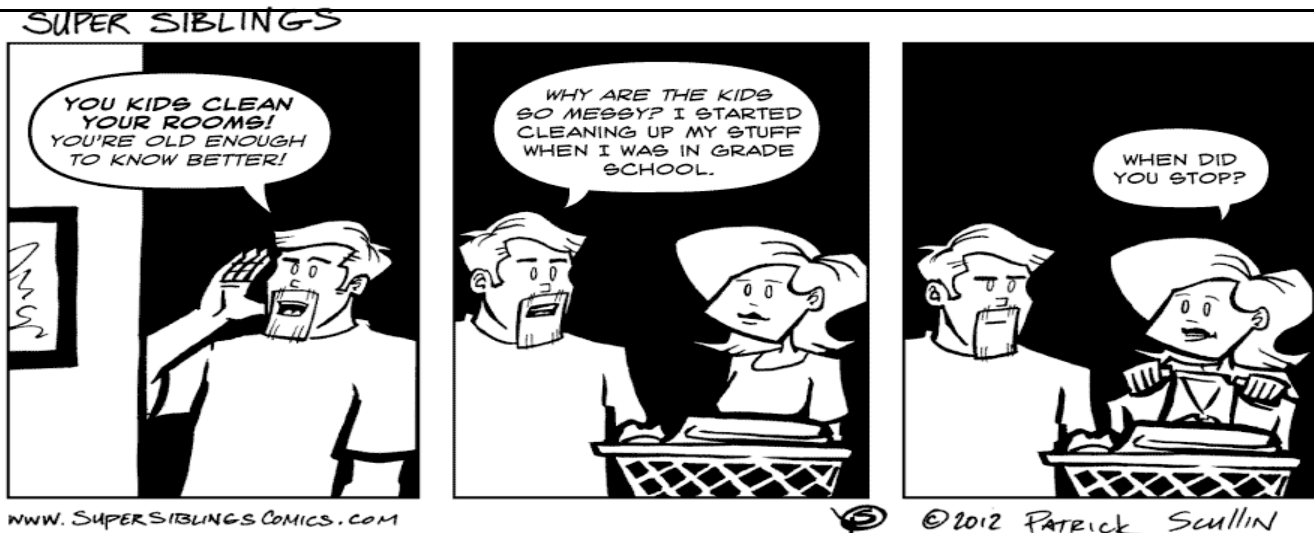

In a powerful statement of support former Railroad Commission (unexpired term) candidates Elizabeth Murray-Kolb and Al Lee endorsed Commission Chairman Barry Smitherman for his run-off election. Chairman Smitherman earned 44.2% of the primary election vote, and Lee and Murray-Kolb earned another 28% for a combined total of 72.2%.

“I am blessed to have spent time with both Elizabeth Murray-Kolb and Al Lee on the campaign trail. Since they both had equal time to get to know both my opponent, and me, I think it speaks volumes that they are supporting me – just as the voters in my opponent’s home county supported me over my opponent. Their support and their endorsing me as the truly qualified, real conservative in the race is to lead the Texas Railroad Commission is truly humbling,” Smitherman said.

Elizabeth Murray-Kolb said, “The Railroad Commission is, arguably, the most important energy regulatory agency in the world and it requires world class leadership. Barry Smitherman provides that leadership and has the background in scholarship, leadership, experience and humility to continue at the helm of the Railroad Commission. I ran for the Texas Railroad Commission because I believe in transparency in government and wanted to bring more light to the Commission’s regulatory functions. I am confident that Commissioner Smitherman shares my concerns and is working to implement these important changes at the Commission. I am proud to endorse Barry Smitherman and ask that anyone who honored me with their vote to join me in supporting and casting their vote in the run-off election for the only truly qualified candidate, The Honorable Barry Smitherman.”

Al Lee said, “When you campaign against other candidates you learn a lot about them. You get to know who is genuine and who is not. I came to believe that Barry is truly a sincere conservative and that the differences we have between us are minor in comparison to the areas of agreement. I can say with confidence that Barry Smitherman is the real conservative in this runoff. I am supporting him and I am asking you to do the same.”

“I look forward to working with Elizabeth Murray-Kolb and Al Lee on the issues we heard from the voters about time and again: securing Texas and American energy independence, increasing the transparency and efficiency of the Railroad Commission, and keeping the Obama Administration from killing our jobs through regulatory and administrative law overreach,” concluded Smitherman.
